Fact or Fiction

A history of the unexplained, the many stories, the research, including psychological attempts in this fine county of ours to find and prove the very existence of paranormal activities, or uncover what is just figments of the imagination. Manifestations happen, and according to locals on Barton Broad, from Stalham via the River Ant, there is evidence suggesting that the face of a young girl can be seen from the air. The young girl was killed accidentally by her father in the year of the crusades. If seen she isn't there to hurt you, her face rises through the warm mist that lifts from this sheet of water, and spreads over the entirety of the Broad.

ESP (extrasensory perception) gives you a creeping sensation at the back of your neck. The dipphase of fear erupts in your brain simultaneously triggering your sensitivity to imagination, so is there proof that spirits of phenomena exist in our own souls?
